DISTRIBUTION OF PATRONAGE

A Perplexing Question at Washington.

ARE WAITING ON WILSON NOW.

Hard to Tell Whether a Certain Civil Service Law
Will Be Revoked.

TAVENNER SAYS TO GO EASY

(By Clyde H. Tavenner.)

Washington, Nov. 30.—Everybody wants to know about the distribution of Patronage under the new administration. Every member of Congress of Democratic faith is receiving inquiries and applications by the hundred.

I came on to Washington at an earlier date than I intended, to try to discover the prospects of what will be done in a general way, but have found out nothing valuable, or tangible. There is much guessing and newspaper talk; but that is all. All things concerning the distribution of patronage are up in the air, so to speak. President-elect Wilson, who is resting in Bermuda, has not, so far as is generally known, given any indication of his intention on this subject. Nothing definite will be known until he speaks. The only things certain at this writing are:

1. President Taft has by executive order placed all the fourth-class postmasters under the Civil Service; that is, all postmasters drawing less than $1,000 per annum. This means that the present fourth-class postmasters will hold for life, or during good behavior, unless President Wilson revokes President Taft's order. Whether he will revoke it nobody knows.

2. Most of the places worth having except those which have to be confirmed by the Senate have been for some time under civil service. This greatly lessens the number of positions formerly available.

3. For twenty years the custom has been for federal officials appointed for four years, such as postmasters, U. S. Marshals, etc., to serve out their terms unless they took part in politics during their terms. Whether this custom will be continued it is impossible to say.

4. President Taft is said to have declared his intention to fill all vacancies as soon as they occur. But whether the Senate will confirm his appointees, or hold up their nominations, it is impossible to even guess.

5. The custom has been for the patronage of any particular State to be directed through the Senators and Representatives thereof who are of the same political persuasion as the administration, if any such there be, and if none such, then through the national committeeman or some dependable friend or friends. Under this arrangement Representatives are depended upon to recommend postmasters in their own districts while Senators are depended upon to recommend postmasters in Congressional districts not represented by Congressmen of the same political faith as the President. Senators are also depended upon to recommend for marshalships and offices of that kind, including departmental positions and places in the consular and diplomatic service, and in fact all offices not local. Of course, as a rule, the Senators consult with Representatives in these matters, all trying to do the most possible for their constituents.

6. What scheme for selecting postmasters, etc., President Wilson and his Cabinet may adopt is wholly conjectural. Some advocate one plan and some another. Consequently it might be best for those intending to be applicants to let matters rest until the situation clears up somewhat.

BEN JOHNSON CARRIES
EVERY COUNTY AGAIN

The remarkable race made by Congressman Ben Johnson in the Fourth district is shown by the official figures as canvassed by the State Board of Election Commissioners at Frankfort, last week. Although Wilson and Marshall carried ed the district by less than a thousand, Congressman Johnson won over Ed Bassett, his "Bull Moose" opponent, by 15,261 plurality, and had 8,540 majority over Bassett and J. C. Thompson, the regular Republican candidate. It did not cost him a cent either. For the second time Mr. Johnson has the distinction of carrying every county in the Fourth district, he having performed the same feat in 1910 against Dr. Gaddie, his Republican opponent.

BAPTIST MINISTER SENT TO JAIL FOR CONTEMPT

Elizabethtown, Ky., Nov. 30.—Special Judge W. J. Sandidge, of Russellville, reconvened the Hardin Circuit Court in extra session this morning to try a number of equity cases continued from last week. The most notable incident of the day's proceedings was the sentencing of the Rev. Thomas J. Duvall, a well-known Baptist minister, to jail for contempt of court. Mr. Duvall was sued by his wife for divorce and alimony some time ago, and Judge Sandidge, who was then presiding as special judge, rendered a decision in the alimony suit which highly incensed the minister, who considered it excessive. Mr. Duvall has since been making public addresses against divorces in general.

The minister to-day, while court was in session, endeavored to talk in open court, when the Judge commanded him to sit down and to keep quiet.

The minister answered: "The court and the lawyers here have robbed me of everything I had," whereupon Judge Sandidge sent the preacher to jail for twenty-four hours. Mr. Duvall was formerly the pastor of a Baptist church in Louisville and is well known throughout this State and Missouri.

REMOVES TWO WHO WERE ACTIVE FOR ROOSEVELT

Washington, Nov. 30.—President Taft, through the Department of Justice, to-day removed from office Eugene Nolte, United States Marshal for the Western district of Texas, and D. E. Lyon, Marshal for the Eastern section of that State.

The two Marshals were removed "for the good of the service" and were charged with "pernicious political activity" in behalf of Col. Cecil Lyon, former Republican National Committeeman from Texas, who was the leading supporter of Col. Roosevelt, in that State.

Bert J. MacDowell, of Del Rio, was appointed to succeed Nolte and Phil E. Baer, of Paris, to succeed Lyon. These removals were the first President Taft has made "for pernicious political activity" since the election.

BECKHAM ANNOUNCES
FOR THE U. S. SENATE

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 30.—Former Governor J. C. W. Beckham, this morning issued his formal announcement as a candidate for the United States Senate. He says that when he retired from the governorship it had been his intention to give up public life, but that he has received so many assurances of support from the press and the people that he decided to enter the contest.

He stands on his record as Governor. He says he has always been frank with the people and his views on public questions are known. He is heartily in favor of the progressive measures outlined in the Democratic platform.

Mr. Beckham announces his candidacy subject to the State-wide primary next August.

The capital stock is placed at $50,000 and is divided into 500 shares at the par value of $100 a share. Of the incorporators, J. H. Nave owns 100 shares; J. F. Vickers, fifty shares, and I. P. Barnard, of Louisville, 350 shares. The two stockholders first named live in Owensboro. The company will engage in the buying and selling of tobacco and will sell tobacco at a commission for the farmers.

CONDITIONS AT McHENRY NOW

Remain About the Same
As for Months.

CAR SHORTAGE MAIN TROUBLE

Something of How the Miners
Live in Their Every-Day Life.

THE L. C. APPEARS BLAMABLE

McHenry, Ky., Nov. 30.—Fourteen hundred coal miners and their families, living in and about McHenry, are facing a desperate situation, due, they claim, to failure on the part of the Illinois Central Railroad Company to furnish cars sufficient to carry away the output of the coal mines of Ohio county. For the last eighteen months they have worked on an average of but two days a week, and were it not for the fact that they are being extended credit by the company stores, many would be on the brink of starvation. They are fast approaching that point, however, for the reason that their limit, in the matter of credit, has almost been reached, and the day is not far distant when the company stores, it is feared, will turn a deaf ear to the men and women who seek supplies without money.

Although conditions are bordering on the critical, they are not as desperate as one not knowing the thrift of the miners would imagine. There have been but one or two cases of absolute destitution, and these have been speedily relieved by the more fortunate moment they were discovered, there being a fellow feeling among the men who work underground here that is rarely found among other classes of people. The constant danger attaching to the work of the miners, said to be responsible for this, and the men of McHenry and adjoining mining towns would divide their last crust with a fellow workman.

Were all the miners entirely dependent upon the mines for their support the limit in Ohio county would have been reached long ago, but such is not the case. When the mines are being worked full time, the miners leave them at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and sometimes earlier, and return to their homes, where they put in their time during the summer working gardens and looking after stock, such as milk cows and pigs. Nearly all the miners, or their wives, raise chickens, making their table in the summer cost comparatively little. In the fall they kill hogs, putting away their own meat, explaining to a large degree the reason why the crisis has not been reached here before now.

Figuring solely upon the absolute necessities of life, the cost per month of maintaining the average miner's family, five in number, is $47.65, while during the past eighteen months the average miner has been unable to earn more than $20 a month, showing a balance of $25.65 on the wrong side of the ledger at the end of each thirty days. Robert Yoham, who has worked in the coal mines in and about McHenry for the past ten years, itemized the cost of living as follows:

Rent, per month, $7.00.
Doctor's fee, per month, $1.00.
Dues to union, per month, $1.00.
Smithing, 75c.
Groceries, $25.00.
Incidentals, including clothing, $5.00.
Coal, $3.90.
Total, $45.65.

"This is the very cheapest a family of five can live," Yoham said, "and the average miner's family consists of five persons. There are some who have as many as ten in family, but in such instances there is usually more than one breadwinner, some of the boys being able to help their families."

Not only are the miners and those dependent upon them for trade affected by the alleged shortage on the part of the Illinois Central Railroad Company, but the coal operators are losing money as well. "They have plenty of orders," a man who has lived in McHenry for years said, "but they can't get the cars to fill them. Whether the mine is in operation or not, there is a fixed cost of about $75 a day attached to it, for the reason that the mine has to be kept dry and consequently the pumps are kept going."

Probably because it is to the interest of the operators to keep the miners about their plants in the hope that present conditions will be remedied soon, they are carrying the miners on their books to the extent of thousands of dollars.

"The company stores have credited the men to the extent of $5,000 doubtless," said Charles Vance, who has been mining coal in Ohio county for the last twenty years. "The men have no fault to find with the operators. They are doing all in their power to relieve conditions, but their hands are tied. They tell me that they have the orders for coal, enough to keep the men busy six days out of the week, if they could but get the cars, but they can't. The railroad company just won't furnish them."

"Conditions have reached a point," he continued, "where the operators are compelled to begin withdrawing their support from the men. I cannot blame them. The stage has now arrived where a woman, when, with tears in her eyes, she asks the company store for a dollar, is given a half. It is the beginning of the end, and unless we receive immediate relief, the crash will come speedily."

Those in charge of the various mines in Ohio county are silent concerning the cause for present conditions.

"Their lips are sealed," said "Uncle Charlie" Vance, "because they fear the railroad. They have been told by the mining company heads to say nothing for fear the railroad will go a step farther than it has already gone, and they are following orders. It would be as much as their jobs are worth to disobey."

When asked why it was that the railroad company was unable to supply the mines with enough cars to handle their output, "Uncle Charlie," considered the sage of the miners in Ohio county, stroked his chin knowingly and said in a whisper that there was a belief on the part of some that the railroad is attempting to coerce the operators into selling to it, at the railroad's own price, all their coal.

"Of course, I don't know," he said, "but it seems funny to me that the three mines in Muhlenberg county that dispose of all their coal to the railroad are supplied with all the cars they need. Another odd thing about the matter is that just before the miners and operators reached their wage scale agreement last summer and there was a possibility of a tie-up at the mines, empty coal cars were standing on sidings in and about McHenry all the time."

"The company says it hasn't got the cars, and maybe it hasn't, but it is furnishing them in Indiana and Illinois, and to non-union mines."

OWENSBORO BOY JUSTIFIED IN KILLING PLAYMATE

Owensboro, Ky., Nov. 30.—The courtroom was packed with a crowd of several hundred persons this afternoon when County Judge W. W. Owen, after hearing the evidence in the case of the Commonwealth against Edward Ebach, 15 years of age, charged with the murder of Dewey Loumingshouser, 14 years of age, dismissed the boy after an examining trial. With the announcement of the Judge the crowd broke into cheers, the demonstration lasting for several minutes.

The little fellow, who early in the week stabbed his companion to death in a fight, went to the Judge's stand and thanked him. He was then surrounded by women who had taught him in the public school and was showered with kisses. It was proven in court that the Loumingshouser boy, who was larger than Ebach, had threatened him and had often abused him.

WOULD NOT TAKE 1916 NOMINATION

Such Is Announcement of President Taft.

HE DISCUSSES HIS POSITION

May Become Leader of the Movement to Strengthen Party Lines.

WILL BE ACTIVE IN HIS PARTY

Washington, Nov. 30.—President Taft has quietly informed friends that no matter how active his participation in a reorganization of the Republican party may be, he is not to be regarded or referred to as a possible candidate of the party in 1916.

The President has made it plain that he does not wish to be considered as in any way having an eye on the first place on the Republican ticket four years from now. He intends to do all in his power to help rejuvenate the party, and probably will make many political speeches before March 4 and after he re-enters private life. According to close friends he is in the fight to continue the party and return it to power, as a man who has been its standard bearer for four years, and not as a man seeking a renomination.

These facts have been developed here during the last few days, in connection with discussion of a proposed gathering of Republican leaders to formulate plans for bringing the Republican factions together. Within the last week nearly a dozen Republican national committeemen have called at the White House for brief conferences, either with the President or with his secretary, Charles D. Hilles.

A meeting of the Republican leaders at New York or Washington some time in January is being considered, but the plans are as yet indefinite. President Taft and Mr. Hilles are being urged to take part in the movement to establish action, "militant" headquarters for the party, to open at once, and to lead a general party reorganization movement during the next four years.

It is said that President Taft may actually become the leader of the movement to strengthen party ties, but if so it will be with the understanding that he does not undertake it with any plan that he is to be the candidate for President four years hence.

The Republican committeemen, who have been in Washington recently, have offered various suggestions for the reopening of party activity. The majority of them favor a general publicity and educational campaign, to strengthen public support of Republican principles, and to place the party in a position to take advantage of any "mistakes" the Democratic administration may make.

The President is expected to speak at a Republican dinner in New York in January, but it is said here that there has been an understanding that no speaker at that dinner, whenever it is held, shall refer to the President as the prospective Republican standard-bearer of 1916. His indorsement of the dinner idea is said to have been contingent upon such an understanding.

DAVIES RURAL HOME
TELEPHONE TO BE SOLD

The Owensboro Messenger says: It has now been definitely determined by the vote of a majority of the stockholders in the Rural Home Telephone company that the entire plant of the company is to be sold and that the business affairs of the company are to be liquidated. The decision was reached at a meeting held by the stockholders at a recent date.

The company was organized in August, 1903, and at this time about seventy-five per cent. of the stock is held by Russell, Brewster & Co., while the remainder of it is held and owned by Owensboro and Davies county people. L. Newman Birk being the largest individual stockholder.

The company has for a number of years been operating exchanges at Stanley, Sorgho, Whitesville, Maceo, Knottsville, and Ensor, and it is stated that the property represents an investment of $50,000.

It was agreed that the property, should be offered for sale at public outcry at the court house door in Owensboro, on Friday, December 20.

OLDEST HUMAN IN WORLD
STILL HALE AND HEARTY

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 29.—Wah-Hah-Gun-Ta, which translated into English means Wiley Wimpuss, fire-maker, the 131-year-old Blackfoot Indian from Glacier reservation, is in Chicago to see the United States land show. Chief Firemaker is the oldest human being in the world, having been born in the region now known as Glacier National Park in 1781, according to well authenticated tradition.

The big chief was a stalwart young brave of eighteen at the time of George Washington's death in 1799. He was the first red man from the far West to visit the great White Father, and his journey to the national capital when President Jefferson was in the White House was a memorable event in his life. He is regarded in his tribe as an oracle.

At the time of his birth, so the Indian legend goes, the father of all spirits, standing on a mountain, shot an arrow near his father's tepee. The prophecy, as interpreted by the medicine men, is that he would live forever and assist the gods in their councils. The aged Indian is a chieftain of his tribe, and in his younger days was a great huntsman. He has killed 3,000 buffalo.

KILLED WHILE PLAYING AT "TAKING MEDICINE"

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 28.—Playing at "taking medicine" was fatal to Thelma and Frances Tracy, children of Dorsey Tracy, of the Pea Ridge neighborhood, this county, last night. Joseph Tracy, their grandfather, who lives with them, has cancer, and morphine is kept in a box for his use to relieve his suffering. This afternoon the two little girls got the box, and it is supposed they were imitating their grandfather. When found they were both unconscious and died before a physician could arrive. Thelma was 5 and Frances 2 years old.

HANGED AFTER BEING
SENTENCED SIX TIMES

Waxahachie, Tex., Nov. 30.—Burrell Oats, a negro, convicted of murdering Sol Aronoff, of Dallas, eight years ago, was hanged here to-day, closing thereby one of the most notable legal incidents in Texas jurisprudence.

Oates, without money or influence was the cause of two changes and was the cause of two changes in Texas statutes during his long and remarkable legal fight against the charge of murder.

Oats' fight for life was made all the more remarkable by the fact that every one of his seven juries found him guilty of murder and six of them condemned him to death. The other jury, being unable to agree over a penalty, caused a mistrial, although declaring the negro's guilt. Technicalities and at times more serious legal errors have been used repeatedly to secure new trials for Oats. The sixth trial was declared void because the jury in writing its verdict inadvertently omitted the words "in first degree" in finding Oats guilty.

Largest Woman Dead.

Montreal, Nov. 28.—Justine Masson, who weighed 780 pounds and is said to have been the largest woman in the world, died here to-day.

Several months ago she became insane and was taken in charge by the Assistance Publique. In the institution she became notorious for exploits of strength when in a frenzy. Even the walls of her room failed to restrain her, and it was necessary to build a roundhouse outside the main building especially for her.

A specially built coffin will be necessary.

FINE SPEECH OF PRESIDENT TAFT

Which Was Epoch-Making In Its Sentiment.

AN ADDRESS TO THE LADIES

Of the United Daughters of the Confederacy Made at Washington.

GREAT THOUGHTS EXPRESSED

Address of President Taft at the opening session of convention of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, at Continental Memorial hall, Washington, D. C., November, 12, 1912.

Ladies of the United Daughters of the Confederacy—I beg to welcome you to Washington. You have captured this city beautiful and made it more lovely by your presence. As its temporary head, I give you the freedom of the city, and recognize that in what you have done, you have founded a shrine and an altar here which will be visited in the future by many a faithful pilgrim.

If the occasion which brings you here were the mourning at the bier of a lost cause, I know that the nice sense of propriety of a fine old school would have prevented you from inviting me, as the President of the United States, to be present. You are not here to mourn or support a cause. You are here to celebrate, and justly to celebrate, the heroism, the courage and the sacrifices to the uttermost of year fathers and your brothers and your mothers and your sisters, and of all your kin, in a cause which they honestly believed in their hearts to be right, and for which they were willing to lay down their lives. That cause ceased to be, except in history, now more than half a century ago. It was one which could elicit from half a nation, and a brave and warlike race, a four-years' struggle in which lives, property, and everything save honor were willingly parted with for its sake. So great was the genius for military leadership of many of your generals, so adaptable was the individual of your race to effective warlike training, so full of patriotic sacrifice were your people, that now, when all the bitterness of the struggle on our part of the North has passed away, we are able to share with you of the South your just pride in your men and women who carried on the unexampled contest to an exhaustion that few countries ever suffered. The calm observer and historian, whatever his origin, may now rejoice in his heart that the Lord ordained it as it is. But no son of the South and no son of the North, with any spark in him of pride of race, can fail to rejoice in that common heritage of courage and glorious sacrifice that we have in the story of the Civil War and of both sides in the Civil War.

It has naturally taken a long time for the spirit of hostility that such an internecine struggle develops completely to die away. Of course it lasted a less time with those who were the victors and into whose homes and domestic lives the horrors of war were not directly thrust. The physical evidences of war were traceable in the South for decades after they had utterly disappeared in the North in the few places in which they existed. Then there are conditions in the South which are a constant reminder of the history of the past. Until within recent decades, prosperity has not shed her boon of comfort upon the South with as generous a hand as upon the North. Hence those of us at the North who have been sometimes impatient at a little flash now and then of the old sectional antagonism are unreasonable in our failure to allow for these marked differences.

For years after the war, the Republican party, which had carried the Nation through the war to its successful conclusion, was in control of the administration of the Government, and it was impossible for the Southerner to escape the feeling that he was linked in his allegiance to an alien nation and one with whose destiny he found it difficult to identify himself. Time, however, cures much, and after a while there came a Democratic administration of four years, and then another one of four years. Southerners were called to federal office, they came to have more influence in the halls of Congress and in the Senate, and the responsibility of the Government brought with it a sense of closer relationship to it and to all the people for whom the Government was carried on.

I speak for my immediate Republican predecessors in office when I say that they all labored to bring the sections more closely together. I am sure I say that, so far as in me has lain, I have left nothing undone to reduce the sectional feeling and to make the divisions of this our country geographical only. But I am free to admit that circumstances have rendered it more difficult for a Republican administration than for a Democratic administration to give to our Southern brothers and sisters the feeling of close relationship and ownership in the Government of the United States. Therefore, in solving the mystery of that providential dispensation which now brings on a Democratic administration to succeed this, we must admit the good that will come to the whole country in a more confirmed sense of partnership in this Government which our brothers and sisters of the Southland will enjoy in an administration, in which Southern opinion will naturally have greater influence, and the South greater proportionate representation in the cabinet, in Congress, and in other high official station. While I rejoice in the steps that I have been able to take to heal the wounds of sectionalism and to convey to the Southern people, as far as I could, my earnest desire to make this country one, I can not deny that my worthy and distinguished successor has a greater opportunity, and I doubt not he will use it for the benefit of the nation at large.

It fell to my official lot, with universal popular approval, to issue the order which made it possible to erect, in the national cemetery at Arlington, the beautiful monument to the heroic dead of the South that you founded to-day. The event in itself speaks volumes as to the oblivion of sectionalism. It gives me not only great pleasure and great honor, but it gives me the greatest satisfaction as a lover of my country, to be present, as President of the United States, and pronounce upon this occasion the benediction of all true Americans.

NO SMOKE COMING OUT —SAMBO WAS DOUBTFUL

Many have wondered why it was so many negroes deserted the G. O. P. and voted for Teddy. An explanation has been given by a colored citizen of Midway, who says the reason was that when the negroes went into the booth with their ballots, they looked at the log cabin, but saw no smoke coming out of the chimney. They knew from this that there was no fire or other comforts provided for them by the Republicans, so they were afraid to vote for a party that so plainly did not have anything for them. As a result Teddy got the most of them. Heretofore the pictures of the log cabin on the ballots had smoke coming out of the chimney. The omission of this important feature in the picture was noticed by the black man and he acted accordingly.—[Midway Clipper.]

A Des Moines man had an attack of muscular rheumatism in his shoulder. A friend advises him to go to Hot Springs. That meant an expense of $150 or more. Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

A Palpable Mistake.

The Paducah Sun says: "At Clinton, which is the former home of Judge Barkley, there will be a lively scrap. It is said that nearly every citizen of Clinton is after the appointment." The Sun is talking about the postmastership, of course. The Sun is in error, however, as to "nearly every citizen" being a candidate for the appointment. Up to this time, so far as we have been able to tabulate, there are only six hundred and eighty-seven candidates. That is not quite half of Clinton's population, according to the 1910 census.—[Clinton Gazette.]

CHAMP CLARK'S SCHOOL DAYS

Taught School When Only 15 Years Old.

PAWNEED HIS MOTHER'S WATCH

To Carry Him Through the First Two Years—Rather Strenuous Experience.

THE WARNING CAME TOO LATE

When the Speaker was fifteen years old he taught a country school made up of pupils all older than he was, but none so big. Therein lay the secret of his success as a schoolmaster at that stage of the game, because the "feuds," with which the countryside bristled, all came to school and it behooved a teacher to be alert and husky.

Upon one occasion, when the day was warm, he stood in the open doorway giving out words to the class in spelling. His back was toward the road, and something suddenly stung his elbow and stuck in the door casing. He jumped and turned to see the big brother of one of his pupils galloping down the road, and realized he had been shot at for having "licked" a boy the day before.

"There wasn't much in the course of study beyond the three R's—reading, 'ritin' and 'rithmetic," the Speaker observed quietly, as he shifted a carnation in the lapel of his coat, "not much, and the way through them was often pointed out with a piece of hickory! Getting an education was just as lively in the process as imparting it, and kind of a strenuous thing all around. One fellow gave me a brace of pistols to hang in the school house in case of need. That was because I felt sorry for his brother, a little, frail boy, who was half-sick and tried his best to learn things. I used to sit down with the little fellow and help him out after school, and the pistols were just a token of appreciation from the family!"

It was his mother's pretty gold watch that put Speaker Clark through his first two years at the University of Kentucky. It was his most cherished possession, and when he borrowed money and gave that as security, he exacted a promise from the friend who took it that it was to be put away carefully until he should redeem it with a summer's term of teaching.

It was during that summer he sat in his room one night after a long day at the schoolhouse. He was in his shirt sleeves, his boots were down on the floor and his feet were up on the window sill, while he read persistently, although conscious of a disturbance in the street, until he heard a scream and cries of frenzy in tones strangely familiar. It was the same tone that droned through the multiplication table that afternoon in the schoolhouse and the teacher did not stop for boots or hat as he tore out of the house and down the street.

Two men were hanging from a tree; one was lifeless and the body of the younger was still warm as the schoolmaster whipped out his knife and cut it down and laid it on the grass. He worked for an hour to bring the breath of life back into the body of one of his big, wild scholars, but to no purpose.

"I told that fellow a hundred times that thing would happen to him," said the Speaker, as he recalled the horror, "but he was a wild, irresponsible scamp, and had the habit of shooting up the town about once in so often, he and his uncle—the other fellow was his uncle!"

But at the end of that tragic summer he redeemed his mother's watch, carried it for a few days and then returned it to the same man for a loan to carry him through his sophomore year.

"And when I got it back the next fall, I kept it," the Speaker concluded.

You will find that druggists everywhere speak well of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. They know from long experience in the sale of it that in cases of coughs and colds it can always be depended upon, and that it is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by all dealers.

THE POST-OFFICE ROAD IS A ROCKY COUNTRY

Applicants for post-offices under the incoming administration are popping up all over the country. The road that leads to a post-office may prove a rocky one. At the last session of Congress, while the Democratic members seemed to be asleep, an amendment or "rider" was tacked on to the Post-Office appropriation bill, which practically places many of the post-offices under the Civil Service regulation. It looks like the Civil Service law would have to be amended before the pie counter is thrown open to Democrats who want to lick post-office stamps.

CHRISTMAS DON'TS.

Don't give red cravats to a man with hair of the same shade.

Don't give perfume to a woman unless you know her brand, and don't give it at all if you can think of something else.

Don't give cheap scarfpins to servants. Often the servants are more discriminating than they look.

Don't give five-cent cigars to a two-for-a-quarter man.

Don't give cheap presents to your friends with the idea they won't know the difference. If you can't afford to make a worthwhile gift, send a Christmas card and retain your own respect and theirs.

Don't eat your Christmas dinner in a restaurant if you can find any old home that you may eat it in, for a Christmas dinner in a home is worth two in the bush.

Don't let your Christmas go by without giving some sort of a present to a child. The excuse that you know no children will not suffice. You can know plenty of them between now and the day of days.

Don't acquire your Yuletide before the fun of Christmas actually begins. No Christmas is fulfilled when the celebrant is filled full.

Don't buy junk for presents, even if it is cheap, and don't give away anything it would make you sore to receive.

Don't give silk hose to your washerwoman. It might tempt her to lead a gay and frivolous life.

Don't give white shoes to a black maid and then expect her to stay in at nights.

Don't expect to receive as much as you give, as the odds are on the disappointment.

Don't be the first to tell a child there is no Santa Claus. If you have to lie about it, lie, and lie as attractively as your education will permit.

Don't think that Christmas is not your holiday because your religious beliefs don't run that way. It's your holiday, if you want it, and it's religious significance is its smallest element.

Don't fail to spend all the money you have and all you can borrow in order to make it a festive occasion. To do anything else would be decidedly bad form, besides being distinctly unusual.—[New York Telegraph.]

Secret of a Newspaper's Power.

An independent and ably edited newspaper that commands a great circulation is probably the most potent influence for good in the United States to-day.

The power for the better things in public affairs and policies, for instance, wielded by such a newspaper as the Chicago Record-Herald can scarcely be exaggerated, and much of that strength comes in the case of this leading Chicago daily from the fact that it is absolutely independent, fearless and fair. It is not the mouthpiece of any interest except that of the public. Here is the secret of the power of the press. No newspaper has very much real power over men and events unless it is known to be standing steadfastly and sanely for the public good—for the welfare of the community and nation—for public honesty and a square deal, whatever happens.

The Chicago Record-Herald champions the cause of the good, the clean, the beneficial in every matter of city, State or national moment. It is the knowledge on the part of its readers that it cares not whom it hits or what enemies it makes, so long as it is battling for the public good, which gives to the Record-Herald most of the wide influence it wields. This public-spirited editorial policy also permeates its news and critical columns. The most complete and impartial reports of the doings of both great political parties to be found anywhere, year in and year out, will be found in the Chicago Record-Herald.

DESCRIPTION OF WAR'S ETIQUETTE

As It Is Applied to Modern Warfare.

CERTAIN RULES WHICH OBTAIN

And Must Be Obeyed By the Armies of Civilized Nations.

THE POLITENESS OF FIGHTING

War—that is, warfare between civilized nations—has its code of etiquette, known as the customs of war, some of which are written, others tacitly agreed on.

Obvious examples of fighting etiquette are the rules which protect the Red Cross flag of the ambulance, and forbid the use of explosives, or, within limits, expanding bullets.

Nominally, a General may use any means in his power to bring his foe to subjection, but there is a well defined boundary line. A leader may cut off his enemy's food and water supplies. He may subject him to all the horrors of famine and thirst; but he must not poison his food or water.

Suppose a place is besieged and that outside the walls are wells which the besiegers cannot effectively hold, and which the besieged can reach under cover of night. The besieger would be justified in sending parties to fill up the wells with earth and stones, or to destroy them with dynamite. On the other hand to pollute the wells with poison, or to throw dead animals into them would be an infamy.

A "prisoner of war" has his rights. He may be asked to give his parole to promise not to escape; but he must not be forced to give his parole, and is not to be punished for refusing to do so. A prisoner on parole who attempts to escape is liable to be shot, either when escaping or if retaken alive.

An unparoled prisoner may also be shot while in the act of escaping; but if recaptured it would be murder to shoot him, and he should not be punished for his attempt, though he may be placed in more rigorous confinement.

A prisoner may be compelled to earn his "keep" by working at his trade, if he has one, or by doing work for his captors not of a purely military nature. Thus, he may be ordered to assist in draining the camp in which he is a prisoner; but it would not be fair to put him to building fortifications.

The customs of war justify the employment of spies, but under certain rules. If a soldier voluntarily turns traitor, the other side is entitled to make use of him; but it is not "cricket" to tempt a soldier to betray his own side.

If thus tempted, a man may pretend to turn traitor and deceive the enemy with false information. On the other hand, voluntarily to go over to the enemy, pretending to be a traitor or deserter, would be dishonorable conduct—that is, if the pretended traitor is an officer or soldier.

A spy, of course, has no rights, and is at all times liable to be shot or hanged on sight.

An officer, or soldier, however caught in the enemy's camp, must not be treated as a spy, but as a prisoner of war, provided he is not disguised.

If a commander takes part in a charge, or persistently exposes himself to fire, he must take his chance of being shot; but in big affairs it is not the "game" to detail marksmen to try to "pick off" your opponent's general, though every effort may be made to capture him.

When a city or town is bombarded, public buildings—unless used for defensive purposes—should be spared so far as possible. When a place is captured, the victorious foe is entitled to seize its treasure and so on, and to hold them for ransom. To injure or destroy them would be the act of a vandal.

When a country is invaded, the invader can compel the inhabitants to supply him with food and other supplies, and to act as guides, workmen and drivers.

A person who, not belonging to any recognized military force, takes up arms against an invader, is liable to be shot when captured. Retaliation is sanctioned by the customs of war. It is military vengeance, and takes place when an outrage committed on one side is avenged by the commission of a similar act on the other.

Thus, an unjust execution of prisoners held by the enemy may be followed by the execution of an equal number of prisoners held by the opponents.—[Answers.]

OLD AGE IS THE BEST

—ART OF GROWING OLD

There is only one thing we have to do, and that is to grow old. That is the due business of life; it is for that we are put in this world. The art of living is nothing but the art of growing old.

Instead of looking upon old age as a wreck of youth, the pitiful remains of a once valuable life, we should regard it as the masterpiece of life, that for which all preceding stages were but trial essays and preparation.

When Fontanelle was asked what period of life he considered the most fortunate, he replied: "From sixty to eighty. At that age one's place is fixed. Ambition and desires have ceased to torment, and one reaps what he has sown. It is harvest time."

Whether you believe this or not depends upon the point of view you take as to the purpose of human life. If you think a human being is an animal, put in this world to get all the pleasure he can, then naturally you conceive old age to be a calamity. But if you hold that he is a soul, put here in a body in order to perfect and beautify his character, then you must see that old age, when the bodily fires have gone down, and nothing is left but the fine gold of the spirit, is the best of all.—[Dr. Frank Crane, in Woman's World for November.]

Could Shout For Joy.
"I want to thank you from the bottom of my heart," wrote C.B. Rader, of Lewisburg, W. Va., "for the wonderful double benefit I got from Electric Bitters, in curing me of both a severe case of stomach trouble and of rheumatism, from which I had been an almost helpless sufferer for ten years. It suited my case as though made just for me." For dyspepsia, indigestion, jaundice, and to rid the system of kidney poisons that cause rheumatism, Electric Bitters have no equal. Try them. Every bottle is guaranteed to satisfy. Only 50 cents at James H. Williams.

Ready.
"My friend," said the good deacon, "are you prepared for the wrath to come?"
"Yes," replied the crooked politician; "I've got enough to keep me in easy circumstances all my life. Now, let the voters snore me under as soon as they like."

Death of Goebel Pirtle.
Goebel was born Jan. 15, 1900, died October 19, 1912. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Pirtle. Weep not, dear father, mother and sisters, for Goebel. He has gone to rest and live so that you can meet him in heaven. He will be standing at the pearly gates ready to welcome you where there will be no more tears, no more farewells. We know it is hard to give him up. We miss him so much in the home. There is a vacant chair that never can be filled.

Goodbye, Goebel, you have left us. Our hearts are sad and sore. To think you have left us and can come to us no more.
We miss you so much, Goebel. It seems so sadly wrong. That you should go away so soon. To join that heavenly throng.

DANIEL BOONE IN LAW'S CLUTCHES

A Chapter from the Ancient Records.

WAS CHARGED WITH FIGHTING

Records Show Old Hunter Was
"Foxy" and Had Case
Dismissed.

HAPPENED IN WARREN COUNTY

Bowling Green, Ky., Nov. 30.—An afternoon paper here prints an interesting historical event discovered in the first record book of Warren county on file in the County Clerk's office relating to Daniel Boone. It says:

"Kentuckians have always pointed with pride toward Daniel Boone, and he is still the hero of the unsophisticated of the native soil as well as beloved by all and his fame is intimately known in other States, for he was one of the bravest of Kentucky pioneers. But that 'Daddy' was not always of the law-abiding kind and possessed no doubt a spirited temper, and would not permit anyone to 'knock the chip off his shoulder,' is evidenced in an indictment rendered from this county, and his was among the first of six indictments found, when Warren county was formed April 4, 1797. The first grand jury was then formed, with John Curd as foreman, and that body returned a joint true bill against Andrew McFadin and Daniel Boone for fighting, the first Tuesday in April, 1797, at the place appointed for holding court, and knowledge of which fight was known by Alex. Stewart and Gladin Gorin.

"In a tin safety box in the archives of the rear room of the Circuit Clerk's office, the first paper picked up, much in its 'serf' and yellow leaf, in the file box was found the first warrant of arrest in which the Sheriff of the county was commanded to arrest one Daniel Boone. The warrant was written and not printed, as is the case nowadays, and reads as follows: 'The Commonwealth of Kentucky to the Sheriff of Warren county, Greeting: You are hereby commanded to summon Daniel Boone to appear before the Justices of our Court of Quarterly session for said county at the courthouse on the first Tuesday in September next to answer us upon the things which he stands presented by the grand jury, and this you shall in no wise omit under the penalty of one hundred pounds and have then and there this writ. Witness, William Chapline, Clerk of our said court at the courthouse, the 9th day of June, 1797, and in the 6th year of the Commonwealth.'"

On the back of the warrant were the following inscriptions: "The Commonwealth vs. Daniel Boone for Affray.—Test: Wm. Chapline, C. C."
"The within Daniel Boone is not found in my Bailiwick."
"E. M. COVINGTON, Sheriff."

"Now, everybody knows Daniel Boone was too good a 'trapper' himself to get caught and according to the return made, he did not care to part with any of his 'lucky pieces,' and sought one of his most secluded haunts until the movement for his arrest died out. However, he must have been informed that he was wanted for 'scrapping,' for later his attorney, under the date of September 5, 1797, had the indictment quashed. The entry in this instance is as follows: 'Commonwealth vs. Andrew McFadin and Daniel Boone. On motion of the defendants by their attorneys, it is ordered that this suit be dismissed.'"

"No doubt the idealized hero of Kentucky's pioneer days was greatly rejoiced at the final outcome of the suit, to know that he was not any longer in danger of imprisonment and fine, and could freely take up the trail again for the hated 'redskins' and other game."

REGARDING ABOLISHMENT OF THE FISCAL COURT

Another suit is to be filed to determine whether the Fiscal Court of Jefferson county is giving the money of the taxpayers to persons who might be, without meaning to make a pun, described as court favorites. It is charged that more than $11,000 was illegally paid to the County Surveyor for services as County Engineer. It has also been charged that large sums have been paid wrongfully for clerk service to the "Auditor" of the Fiscal Court. No matter how these suits result they will not affect the usefulness—or rather the lack of usefulness —of the Fiscal Court. The only cure for the evils that are bred by the existence of Fiscal Courts is to abolish that form of inefficient machinery and substitute therefor a commission elected by the county at large and composed of a small number of well equipped and well paid men.—[Courier-Journal.]

HOW CHRONIC COUGHS

Are Being Cured by Vinol.

Did you ever cough for a month? Then just think how distressing it must be to have a cough hang on for three months.

Mrs. Maria Primrose, of 87 Newell Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I had a very heavy cold which settled into a chronic cough, which kept me awake nights for fully three months, and felt tired all the time because my rest was broken so much. The effect of taking your cod liver and iron remedy, Vinol, is that my cough is gone. I can now get a good night's rest, and I feel much stronger in every way."

It is the combined action of the medicinal elements, cods' livers, aided by the blood-making and strength-creating properties of tonic iron which makes Vinol so efficient in curing chronic coughs, colds and bronchitis—at the same time building up the weakened, run-down system.

Try a bottle of Vinol, with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you. For Sale by James H. Williams, Druglist, Hartford, Ky.

Birds this year, on account of their scarcity and the smallness of the covies, are hardly worth the license and ammunition that it takes to hunt them.

Mr. Bryan may not be included in President Wilson's cabinet, but he will almost certainly have something to do with the running of matters political from the outside.

A Christian county man has found a prehistoric idol in a cave. Plenty of men of modern times have idols, however, and they do not have to go to caves to worship them.

President Taft, with his political weather eye looking into the future, says he will positively not be a candidate for President in 1916. The President's own remarks is the first time we have heard the subject mentioned as regards himself.

Some fellow who has kept track of the matter says that fourteen women in this country have been acquitted of killing their husbands since the first of last June. This, however, will probably not have any effect on the matrimonial market.

As a sample of Republican party "trust busting," the Standard Oil Company's dividend for one year since the famous dissolution, amounts to 52 1/2 per cent. Thus did the trusts fatten on such methods of putting them out of business.

Democrats are talking about splitting the blanket—that is they are planning to rip President Taft's blanket order whereby about 36,000 fourth-class postmasters were placed under the civil service. Let us hope they will not split among themselves in so doing.

President Taft carried twenty-three counties of Kentucky at the recent election and Col. Roosevelt six. Gov. Wilson carried all the others and yet got a majority over both Taft and Roosevelt combined of only 1,306. Wilson led Taft, however, by 104,072 votes.

That was a good move when the miners of Ohio county made a public appeal and exposition of the conditions prevailing on account of a lack of cars to move the coal that lies waiting the pick and the market. These conditions have prevailed for several years and the miners have become desperate. It is well to let the public know how affairs are running among this worthy class of workmen.

The Board of Health of Chicago announces that the Windy City is the most healthful place to live in the country. From what we have heard of the place, that depends on what portion of the city you live in and whether you ever go out in the "night air." It is said there are several sections of the city where a man takes his life in his hands when he ventures out or frequents the same after dark. Naturally these sections would be considered unhealthy all the time.

You can sometimes or generally tell the thrifty farmer by the kind of literature he keeps around the house. First of all comes his county paper—one or more—which keeps him and his family informed as to current events and contains much of profit to him in his calling. He could hardly be called up to date without this journal. Then he takes one or more regular farm journals which deal specifically with the farming business. But he will usually find much in his home paper along the same line. The successful farmer must keep posted.

The independence of the Philippine Islands is one of the matters to which the Democratic party stands committed. One clause of the Democratic national platform is as follows:

"We favor an immediate declaration of the nation's purpose to recognize the independence of the Philippine Islands as soon as a stable government can be established, such independence to be guaranteed by us until the neutralization of the islands can be secured by treaty with other powers."

NEW PENSION SYSTEM IN COURSE OF INAUGURATION

Washington, Dec. 1.—The new system of paying all persons on the Federal pension rolls direct from Washington instead of through the eighteen pension agencies, is now being inaugurated by the Pension Bureau. Checks are being sent to 300,000 pensioners in the section heretofore covered by the agencies at Augusta, Ga., Boston, Columbus, Detroit, Washington and San Francisco. The personnel of the agencies at Indianapolis, Knoxville, Louisville, New York, Philadelphia and Topeka, which have completed their November payments, will soon be brought to Washington, the first of the agency transfers to the Pension Bureau.

Special efforts are being made by Commissioner of Pensions Davenport and Dr. Thompson, chief of the finance division, to make banks and pensioners understand the new pension check system. For the first time in history the pensioners will be paid without the formality of vouchers, the checks serving the same purpose by a requirement of indorsement by the pensioner in the presence of two witnesses. The pensioner also must show to the indorsers his certificate, the number of which must tally with the certificate number on the checks. The new system obviates the necessity of receipts.

Patrick, thrice on the verge of death in the electric chair, and a life prisoner in Sing Sing for the murder of William Marsh Rice, ate Thanksgiving dinner at his home in New York to-night, a free man. THERE WILL BE NO DELAY IN CANAL COMPLETION

Shirley Says Big Ditch Will Be Fortified and Open Within a Year.

Washington, Nov. 30.—"The Panama Canal will be open for business within a year from to-day, and will be amply fortified."

This statement was made last night by Representative Swager Shirley, chairman of the Fortifications Subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee, who returned from a tour of inspection on the isthmus with the other members of the Appropriations Committee.

"The work on the isthmus is progressing rapidly," continued the Louisville Congressman. "The charge made by 'Uncle Joe' Cannon and other Republicans at the last session of Congress that we were not appropriating sufficient money to carry on the work of building the canal properly was all nonsense. I and my Democratic colleagues so stated on the floor of the House at the time, and on our trip to the canal this fall we found that our statements were justified. The work is not being delayed in any way.

"For the next fiscal year, to bring the great work to a satisfactory conclusion, the Democratic House will appropriate every cent that is necessary. The same will be true of the money needed for fortifications. I was pleased to see that the emplacements for many of the big guns are ready now. We will be prepared to protect our work from any b'arrent Power when we are ready to open it for business."

Mr. Shirley will spend several days at the New Willard Hotel while he is finding a permanent home for the winter for himself and his family. He will begin work at once on the big appropriation bills that must be whipped into shape by the House Appropriations Committee for passage by the House and Senate before March 4 next.

Wants Jobs For Jobless.

Three wallets and $30 were found in his coat.

ANOTHER CASE OF DIDN'T KNOW GUN WAS LOADED

The Owensboro Messenger says: "I am an Indian chief, and you are my captive," said Ray Moseley, as he and several small children securely tied Clarence Moseley, nine years of age, a brother of Ray, to a tree. Then there was a "war dance" about the tree, and a rifle, held by Moseley, was waved in the air. He pointed the gun at his brother, who was enjoying the sport, and pulled the trigger.

There was a flash and a sharp report. All of the children were startled and stopped their romping. "Help! I am killed!" cried the little prisoner.

His companions at first thought he was joking, but they became terrified when they saw his shirt crimson with blood. They ran screaming to the house, and his father, J. R. Moseley, came to his rescue. He was carried to the house and then hurried to the city hospital, where he was given medical attention. The bullet from the rifle entered the left side and perforated the intestines four times. His condition was critical last night. Physicians say that he has a fighting chance. His brother is grief-stricken at his home on the Leitchfield road, and declares that he had no idea that the gun was loaded. It has been necessary to restrain him from going to the hospital and keep constant vigil at the side of his brother.

Committed Suicide.

Bob O. Jackson, of Pleasant Ridge, who had been ill for the past three weeks, arose from his bed Monday morning at 6 o'clock and went to the meathouse and cut his throat with his pocket knife, making a gash about six inches long, severing the windpipe.

As soon as his condition was discovered his wife hastily summoned Drs. Shultz and Stirman, who did all they could for him but to no avail. He died at 7 o'clock Monday evening.

After funeral services at Friendship church yesterday morning at 11 o'clock, his remains were buried in the Bell's Run cemetery.

The deceased was 43 years of age and leaves a wife and one child. The cause of the rash act is not known further than the statement made by him a short time before he died, in which he said he "had more than he could bear."

OIL NEWS.

The West Kentucky Oil & Gas Co. have their 800 barrel tank installed at Dukehurst and pipe connections from the oil wells, where about 2,000 barrels of oil is stored which they will begin shipping to-day. Well No. 2 is producing 100 barrels pumped only in day time. Well No. 3 is being drilled and the rig for well No. 4 is completed and the drilling machinery will be installed at once. The company have also ordered a 20-horse power gas engine which will be installed midway between wells Nos. 1 and 2 and do the pumping for both of these wells as soon as the casing is replaced in well No. 1.

The Rough River Oil & Gas Co. have the rig completed on the Weller farm and will go to drilling to-day.

Van May's House Burned.

Mr. Van May lost his residence and most of its contents from fire last Friday morning. Mr. May was away from home and his oldest son was out on the farm when the house caught on fire. The small children gave the alarm but before the son and neighbors could reach the house the fire was under such headway nothing could be saved except three feather beds and a very few other things. The family lost all their clothing except what they had on. There was $400 which Mr. May says was in a tin can in the upstairs room, burned.

There was $600 insurance on the house, which we are informed, will not replace the building.

STARTLING FIGURES IN JEFFERSON COUNTY

Infection Found In 35 percent of Population In This County.

Jefferson county is afflicted with hookworm to the extent of 20 per cent. of the population, and 15 per cent. more of the populace are afflicted with other intestinal parasites.

This startling declaration was made recently by Dr. W. W. Richmond, a member of the State Board of Health, after three weeks' campaign in the county. Dr. Richmond and two assistants from the State Bacteriological Laboratory have examined more than 700 specimens during this period and feel that this is a fair percentage on which to base their assertions regarding the county.

Dr. Richmond has visited twenty public schools during the three weeks and delivered twenty-five lectures. Most of these have been on the general subject of the conservation of health and sanitation. Polluted air, soil and water and unclean food also have come in for considerable comment by the physician.

In co-operation with the State Board of Health the Jefferson County Board of Health has been working. Dr. B. W. Smock, county health officer, has been actively engaged with Dr. Richmond.

In their examinations of specimens the physicians have covered every section of the county. Besides hookworm they have found many specimens of round worm and tapeworm, both of which are preventable intestinal parasites.

In combating the inroads of the intestinal parasites the board of health installed dispensaries in various parts of the county. At these places specimens were received and examined and the proper treatment for the diseases given.

During the last few months the State Board of Health has been conducting a State-wide campaign against the hookworm and other diseases. During that time more than 25,000 specimens have been examined in 102 counties and 52 per cent. have been found to be afflicted with intestinal parasites.

Hookworm infection was discovered in 38 per cent. of the cases. This was the statement of Dr. Richmond.

All of these diseases are preventable and the board is conducting the campaign with an idea of showing the country people how to find the remedy. Sanitary outhouses, in which the fluids and other matters have no chance to escape until the germs have been killed, have been recommended and the board is furnishing plans and specifications for caring for the diseases in the cheapest possible manner.

PRANK CAUSED KILLING—REGRETTABLE AFFAIR

A very sad and unfortunate killing occurred near Sunnydale, this county, about 7 o'clock last Saturday evening, when Claude White, a young man about 18 years old, was shot and instantly killed by Cliff Burden, who was returning home from his days work. Burden came to town and surrendered to the authorities. The Coroner, Dr. A. B. Riley, was called and empaneled the following jury: A. C. Coy, J. L. Gillum, G. W. Russell, Lawrence Bunker, Lee Lewis and M. G. Funk. After hearing the evidence the following verdict was returned, signed by all: "We, the jury find the following verdict, that Claude White, age 18 years, came to his death November 30, 1912, at 7:15 p. m. at the hands of Cliff Burden, who shot him in self defense, thinking he (Claude White), was trying to do him bodily harm, not knowing who it was."

After the verdict was returned Cliff Burden was ordered released and he returned home with his father and other friends Sunday afternoon. From the best we can learn, there being no eye witness, Cliff Burden was returning home from his days work and on the road, at a dark place, young White jumped and grabbed Burden and when he did this, Burden fired, striking him over the right eye the ball passing through his brain fracturing the skull on the opposite side. Burden saw the man fall and ran and notified parties what had happened and the neighbors soon came on the scene and discovered that it was young White, who had evidently only attempted to frighten his friend and neighbor, Burden.

The unfortunate part of the whole affair is, that Burden had a pistol with him. This thing of carrying pistols around promiscuously should be stopped, as should also the practice of trying to scare people.

RETURNED TO HARTFORD TO FACE BAD CHARGES

C. L. Williams, who was indicted at the March 1910 term of the Ohio Circuit Court charged with embezzling $413.27, the funds of the Louisville, Henderson & St. Louis Railway Company, was arrested at Ft. Smith, Ark., last Friday and delivered to the Jail of Ohio county last Monday morning by Frank L. Miller, Inspector for the American Surety Company, of New York. Williams having waived extradition papers and placed into the special bailiff Miller's hands to be brought to Hartford. There being no commitment papers, the Jailor, Mr. Midkiff, refused to lock Mr. Williams in jail, but instead kept him in his residence.

Upon investigation of the records in the Ohio Circuit Clerk's office it was found that the indictment returned by the grand jury at the March term, 1910, had been dismissed by an order of Court entered at the February term, 1911, the Commonwealth's Attorney having filed statement asking its dismissal.

On Tuesday morning a writ was issued from the County Judge's office on the affidavit of Frank L. Miller, charging Williams with the crime of embezzlement, whereupon he was rearrested and his bond was fixed at $500 and failing to execute, the defendant was placed in the custody of the Jailor to await the examining trial which is set for tomorrow.

STATE IS RICHER BY $30,000,000

On Account of Just One Man's Efforts.

WHAT HE DID FOR CORN YIELD

Exploits One Idea at a Time
But It Has Done Wonders for Corn.

WHAT FARMERS SHOULD READ

In the November American Magazine appears an article about Professor P. G. Holden, of the Iowa State College of Agriculture, who taught the people of his State how to raise more and better corn. Since he began his work nine years ago, the average yield of corn in Iowa has increased 27,000,000 bushels annually. The following is an extract:

"If you were told that one man had increased the wealth of one State by thirty million dollars you would be inclined to be skeptical, yet that was the declaration of Governor Cummins, of Iowa, with reference to the contributions of Professor P. G. Holden to the knowledge of corn raising in that State. Professor Holden occupies a chair in the Iowa State College of Agriculture, and outside of this, holds a unique position, which has been aptly characterized as that of the evangelist of scientific agriculture. He has done more than any one man to popularize the work of the Iowa Agriculture College among the farmers there. He soon discovered, in his college work, that the farmers were not going to learn how to farm; but, on the other hand, had very little use for the scientific farmer. To change this condition became the professor's ambition. His thinking on the subject evolved big ideas which resulted in the establishment of the farmers' short courses, special seed-corn trains, the county demonstration work on the county poor farm, the State corn show, and finally the National Corn Exposition. These have made it possible for him to go to the farmers instead of waiting for them to come to him.

"Professor Holden is an enthusiast whose enthusiasm is contagious. His convictions are deep-seated and anything he believes in he can make others see as he does. For this reason he was able to go to presidents of railways and convince them that it was to their interest to run special seed-corn trains and pay all the expenses.

"The special trains would have been failures if Professor Holden had not known how to tell what he knew. He did most of the speaking, until his assistants had learned how to talk to farmers in their own language. Farmers will accept scientific facts from Professor Holden as readily and gladly as children will take sugar-coated pills.

"Part of his success is due to the fact that he exploits only one idea at a time. When he went out on his first seed-corn train, his slogan was 'Test your seed corn,' saying nothing about the preparation of the soil, fertilization, or cultivation. He asked the farmer to study his own cornfield and he would discover that about one-fourth of the stalks were loafing around all summer, doing nothing. This was due to poor germination of the seed, and the latter required as much cultivation and care as the thrifty stalk. The effectiveness of this sort of teaching is shown in the increase of an average of 27,000,000 bushels annually in Iowa, since Professor Holden began his work in that State."

The Christmas Lippincott's.
A strong Yuletide spirit pervades the pages of the December Lippincott's, and good cheer predominates. There is a complete novel, of course—"The Glimmer Glass"—a breezy love story, re-whose recently published book, "A Dixie Rose in Bloom," has made something of a stir. "The Glimmer Glass" is a breezy love story, remarkable not only for the newness of its plot, but for its admirable local color, for its repression, and for its fidelity to life. The scenes are laid in Tranquil Harbor, a quaint village on the New Jersey coast, which gives the author a rare opportunity to display her skill in character-delineation, of which she takes full advantage.

Short stories that breathe of the holiday season are "A Christmas Blessing," by Harriet Prescott Spofford; "The Woman at the Door," by John Nicholas Belfel; "Two-Tails," by Owen Oliver; and "Mercy's Goodness," by Ellis O. Jones. Lucy Copinger contributes "Gurls is Pierce," a funny story of primary-school children, while Temple Bailey is responsible for a clever and touching little tale entitled "Grandma." Then there is another "Short-Story Masterpiece"—the third of the Russian series: "A Long Exile," by Tolstoi. As usual, there is an introduction by the editor.

RURAL CARRIER EXAMINATION

At Horse Branch and Hartford, Ky., for Ohio county, Saturday, January 11, 1913.

The United States Civil Service Commission announces an examination on the date and at the places named above, as a result of which it is expected to make certification to fill a vacancy in the position of rural carrier at Horse Branch, Ky., and other vacancies as they may occur on rural routes at post-offices in the above-named county, unless it is found to be in the interest of the service to fill the vacancy by reinstatement, transfer, or promotion. The usual entrance salary for rural carriers is from $600 to $1,000 per annum.

Age limit, 19 to 55, on the date of the examination. The maximum age limit is waived in cases of persons honorably discharged from the United States military or naval service.

An applicant must have his actual domicile in the territory supplied by a post-office in the county for which the examination is announced.

The examination is open to all male citizens of the United States who can comply with the requirements.

Application Form 1341, and full information concerning the requirements of the examination, can be secured from the secretary of the local examining board or the postmaster at any of the places named above, or from the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

Eligibles on registers established prior to March 1, 1912, can be considered for appointment only at the office for which they were examined. Such eligibles may be examined within one year from the date of their former examinations upon filing applications showing that they meet the requirements of the new examination, their old eligibility for their home offices not being cancelled.

Applications should be properly executed and filed with the Commission at Washington. As examination papers are shipped direct from the Commission to the places of examination, it is necessary that applications be received in ample time to arrange for the examination desired at the place indicated by the applicant. The Commission will therefore arrange to examine any applicant whose application is received in time to permit the shipment of the necessary papers.

An eligible register for the position of rural carrier for each county will be maintained. A person must be examined in the county in which the post-office that supplies his home is situated. As a result of such examination he may become eligible to appointment as rural carrier at any post-office in such county. A rural letter carrier after one year's satisfactory service may be transferred to the position of clerk or carrier in a first or second class post-office, to the position of railway mail clerk, or to other positions in the classified service, subject to such examination as may be required by the civil service rules. JOHN C. BLACK, President.

The Busy Woman's Day.

It begins early, ends late, and is full of work. She often has kidney trouble without knowing it. Her back aches, and she is tired and worn out. Sleeps poorly, is nervous, no appetite. Her bladder gives her trouble, too. Foley Kidney Pills will cure all that and make her strong and well. Mrs. Lena Beyer, 12 Frederick street, Auburn, N. Y., says: "Three boxes of Foley Kidney Pills were all that were needed to make me strong and well." They are the best medicine made for kidney and bladder disorders. Try them. M'LEAN COUNTY FARMERS FAVOR CUTTING IT OUT

As Regards Tobacco—An Appeal For Other Farmers To Do Likewise.

At a great meeting of Equity farmers and tobacco growers held at Faith, in McLean county, last week, much interest was manifested and among other important work done, the following resolution was unanimously adopted, viz: "Resolved, that we, the tobacco growers in session at Faith, Ky., agree to stand by the price as fixed by the A. S. of E. for the 1912 crop of tobacco and we respectfully ask all other local Unions to take similar action along this line; and when the proposition was put as to whether we would stand by the organization in proposed action for next year, the vote indicated a complete landslide in favor of standing firm for the A. S. of E. T. L. SON, President. E. G. MATTINGLY, Sec'y.

The foregoing resolution has the right kind of sentiment in it and we hope all locals will respond to the request as made, call meetings and put before your members the matter as to the planting of no tobacco in 1913, provided the present crop is not sold by December 15 as provided in the Central City Convention. It appears that sentiment is rapidly growing in favor of the output proposition, and farmers both in and out of the A. S. of E. will gladly cut out and take a rest for one year. So we urge local county and district unions to take action at once and report all such action to State Union Headquarters and also be ready to give this important matter proper attention when we meet in State Convention at Calhoun on December 11, 1912. S. B. ROBERTSON, Sec'y. A. S. of E.

Croupy Coughs and Wheezy Colds.
The quickest, simplest way to rid the children of dangerous croupy coughs and wheezy, stuffy colds is to give them Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. It gives almost instant relief and stops a cough promptly. It soothes and heals. Contains no opiates. H. L. Blomquist, Esdalle, Wis., says: "My wife considers Foley's Honey and Tar Compound the best cough cure and it gives the best results." For sale by all dealers. m

Some Musician.
"Was your daughter's musical education a profitable venture?"
"You bet! I bought the houses on either side of us at half their value."

Dr. Wm. Sadler, author of "The Cause and Cure of Colds," says that common colds should be taken seriously, especially when they "hang on." Foley's Honey and Tar Compound is a reliable household medicine for coughs and colds, equally effective for children and for grown persons. Take it when you feel a cold coming on. It will avert danger of serious results and cure quickly. Mrs. N. C. Young, Ceres, Ga., says: "Foley's Honey and Tar Compound completely cleared my throat and cured my cold." HOW ABOUT IT?

Say! by the way,
Are you the man
Who just about a year ago
Sat moping, draped in spirits low,
And mused upon an ill-spent year
As only one who's fiddled can?
And said: "Well, well, the day's 'most here.
The hour for settling up draws near,
And I—I've wasted precious hours
Loafing among the fields and flowers
Instead of simply making hay
While golden moments sped away,
'I George! it makes me blush with shame,
Because I've no one else to blame
For all the things I've left undone,
I've let my rivals cop the mon';
I've let my chances slide right by
And never made a decent try;
I've finished as an also-ran—
Say, Are You That Man?

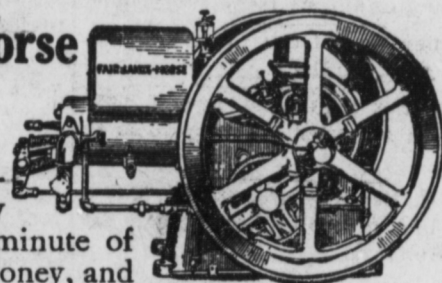

Are you the man
Who slapped his leg and said: By gee!
Here's where I brace! Yes, they shall see,
Some New Year's just what I can do,
To every problem I'll stand true;
I'll hustle every day; I'll work;
I'll never loaf or dodge or shirk
In fact, I'll show the neighborhood
Just how a man looks making good!
Do it? You bet! Of course I can!
Say, Are You That Man?

And now let's see!
The year has sped.
Remember all the things you said?
Recall your promises and say
Just how you figure up to-day.
Made good? No, What? Well, then, why not?
What explanation have you got?
None, eh? Then how about it now?
Beneath that puckered, frowning
brow
What thoughts? "Oh, well, I'm going to Make good all through the year that's new!"
Well, do it! Sure! Of course you can?
For You're The Man!

BEAVER DAM.

Dec. 2.—We understand that there are 16 applicants for the post-office at this place and in the event the present incumbent is removed before the expiration of his term, it would be well for the county committee to order a primary for the two Beaver Dam precincts to settle the matter. Congressman Johnson would probably endorse the man receiving the most votes in the primary and I can see no other way out of the dilemma. Other towns of the State are adopting that plan, so let us follow.

The Methodist Ladies Aid Society gave an "Old People's Concert" at the Methodist Church. It was a very interesting entertainment. The house was full to overflow and everybody was pleased.

Birthday Dinner.

A birthday dinner was given Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Iler, of Centertown, on last Monday by their friends and neighbors to celebrate Mr. Iler's 81st birthday.

The pleasure of the occasion was greatly enhanced by the complete surprise given Uncle Tom and his excellent wife "Aunt" Ellen.

On Monday morning, as was his daily custom, he went to his shop where he was busily engaged until dinner time when he closed his shop and started to Mr. Chester Rowe's to get his dinner, it having been previously arranged that Mrs. Iler was to spend the day with Mrs. Rowe. On the way he noticed dense clouds of smoke issuing from the chimneys of his home; he went by to investigate and found the house filled with his relatives and friends and the dining table completely laden with a feast of good things "fit for a king," that had been prepared beforehand by his uninvited, but welcome guests.

Although 81 years old he is as brisk and spry as many men of 40, is to be found in his saddler's shop six days in the week and at his church and Sunday School on the seventh.

He has been a life-long Democrat and Methodist and reads regularly The Herald, Courier-Journal, the Commoner and the Christian Advocate.

May he live to pass many more birthdays is the wish of all those who know him. The following had the pleasure of enjoying the day and the feast with him:

Rev. Royster, Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Iler and 3 children, Paul, Richard and Owen; Mr. and Mrs. Cleve Iler and son Cleve, Jr.; Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Iler and children, Marychase, Katherine and Maston; Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Iler and children, Anna Elizabeth, Bertha May and Herschel; Mr. R. T. Iler, of Hartford, his brother; Mr. and Mrs. D. M. MRS. LOUITILDA LYNCH

PARDONED BY GOVERNOR

Governor McCreary on Saturday pardoned Mrs. Louitilda Lynch, who shot and killed her son-in-law, Amby Buck, in Daviess county in May, 1911. Her husband, George Lynch, who has been to see the Governor several times in regard to the application, was handed the pardon in person, and he was so overcome with emotion that he sat in the Governor's office and wept, unable to leave his chair for several minutes.

The woman is paralyzed and helpless, according to the report of Dr. E. H. Maggard, physician at the Frankfort reformatory, who thinks that another stroke would be fatal to her. The petition for Mrs. Lynch's pardon was signed by 250 Daviess county citizens.

Mrs. Lynch was convicted at the November term, 1911, of the Daviess Circuit Court, of manslaughter, and sentenced to from two to 21 years.

CHARM OF CHARLESTON.

A City Where Every House Faces Toward the Sea.

Every house in Charleston faces seaward. It frequently happens that the streets do not adjust themselves to this disposition of the house plan, in which case the street line is calmly disregarded and the house is built so that it shall square with the four points of the compass. The result of this is curious and most interesting, at times disconcerting, but frequently as pleasing as one of Whistler's audacious and unexpected color schemes.

As in the mansions of old Virginia, the general form of the Charleston houses is very simple, and they depend for their beauty upon the fine balance and spacing of doors and windows, the character of the cornice and, above all, upon the dignified beauty and classic porticoes and galleries which adorn one side of each structure.

But Charleston has another and quite unique architectural feature in the arched and ornate walls of moss grown brick which close in all of the fine residences and the highly decorative wrought iron gateways which give access to the private grounds. In a city which was at one time the port of call of all the pirates of the Spanish main—where one day it was found advisable to bury forty of these worthless under the sea wall of the city, where half civilized negroes formed always an overwhelming majority of the population. It was the part of common prudence to erect a strong barrier between the streets and the private domains of the better class residents. Out of this necessity grew the infinite number of gates and grilles of twisted iron which are the chief pride of Charleston today and whose only rivals are the far famed gates of Seville. These marvels of wrought and beaten iron were all the work of local smiths. I was told that no two gates of the city were of similar design, and I certainly saw no single example which was not in itself beautiful. — Birge Harrison in Art and Progress.

MEN OF STONE.

Queer Figures Dot the Crest of the Superstitious Mountains.

Among the natural wonders of the southwestern portion of this country are the Superstitious mountains, which loom up from the arid desert to the east of the Salt river valley.

These mountains are so curious that the Indians will have nothing to do with them. In consequence they are full of deer, bear and other big game. The Superstitious mountains rise out of the level surface of the desert like the pyramids of Egypt.

On the crest of this unique range and in full view of the mired atmosphere for an immense distance from the plain are hundreds of queer figures, representing men in all attitudes. When you look first you are sure they are men, and when you turn your gaze again to them you are as absolutely certain of it as you can be of anything. They represent wall throwers, out-looks, mere viewers of the country roundabout, men recumbent and contemplative, others starting a foot race and in every conceivable posture and position. They are not real flesh and blood men, however—nothing but stone syenite—yet nothing can convince the Indians that they are not genuine. They say they are real mortals turned to stone, petrified by the peculiar condition of the air in the mountains.

This belief has grown out of an Apache legend, handed down for hundreds of years. They have it that an ancient chief who had learned of the curious character of the Superstitious mountains forbade any of his people to go there. A large band, however, one day discovered a way to get in by a precipitous route and finally reached the top. It resulted as the chief had said, and they never got down alive.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Nothing More to Live For.

Without question the Scots curler of whom Lord Lyveden tells in Fry's Magazine placed the proper value on his sport.

During a curling match in Switzerland the skip of one of the teams, who happened to be a Scotsman, was so delighted with the accurate shot of one of his team that he was heard to address him in the following manner: "Lie down and die, man; lie down and die. You'll never lay a finer stone nor that if ye live to be a hundred."

Weird Story of a Chair.

In the museum at Cape Town is shown an old fashioned, high backed wooden chair, to which attaches a weird story. It is related that the chair is the one in which the Dutch governor was found sitting dead a few moments after the execution of a soldier whom he had sentenced to be hanged and who on his doom being pronounced solemnly called upon his condempner to accompany him to the throne of the Supreme Judge.

Odd.

Everett Shinn, whose paintings of ballet girls have made him well known, said at a dinner in New York:

"Very few artists can draw a horse, yet any horse can draw an artist, and, by the same token, few artists can paint a ballet girl, yet any ballet girl can paint herself."—New York Press.

Mother as an Accelerator.

Registry Clerk—It is necessary for me to ask the mother of the bride if she has nothing to say before I proceed with the ceremony. Voice of Mother (in background)—All I have to say is that if I hadn't had a good deal to say already they never would have landed here.—Meggendorfer Blatter.
